Saxophone Colossus.
Rhythmical and harmonic aspects of Michael Brecker’s and Chris Potter’s improvisations

WOLF-GEORG ZADDACH

Second International Research Workshop 2016
23rd-24th September 2016, University of Music Franz Liszt Weimar
Aims

1. Creative processes during improvising (similarities, differences and remarkable aspects; personal style)

2. Evaluation of computational analysis tools and identification of possible future approaches (e.g. 4-tone-groups)
Introduction

Michael Brecker
*1949 † 2007

15 Grammy Awards, appears on more than 700 recordings

“widely regarded as the most influential tenor saxophonist since John Coltrane”

Chris Potter
*1971

Appears on more than 150 recordings, 15 albums as leader
Comparison with MeloSpyGUI: Swing Ratio
Comparison with MeloSpyGUI: begin of phrases (absolute)
Comparison with MeloSpyGUI: contour of phrases
Strong sense and intuition for clear rhythm and harmony while improvising

„Never Alone“ (Michael Brecker, Now You See It... (Now You Don’t), 1990)

„Pop Tune #1“ (Chris Potter‘s Underground, Follow The Red Line, Live At The Village Vanguard, 2007)
MICHAEL BRECKER
Interrelation of harmonic and rhythmic ideas

„Cabin Fever“ (Michael Brecker, Tales From The Hudson, 1996)
CHRIS POTTER
Rhythmic agility and imaginativeness

„Arjuna“ (Chris Potter’s Underground, Follow The Red Line, Live At The Village Vanguard, 2007)
„Pop Tune #1“ (Chris Potter’s Underground, Follow The Red Line, Live At The Village Vanguard, 2007)
Chris Potter

Inventiveness of rhythmic and melodic ideas

„Rumple”
(Chris Potter’s Underground,
\textit{Ultrahang}, 2009)
Chris Potter

Rhythmic and metrical flexibility and agility
CHRIS POTTER
Rhythmic and metrical flexibility and agility
CHRIS POTTER
Rhythmic and metrical flexibility and agility
Conclusion

1. Combination of computational analysis (for rather global questions) and ‘classical’ analysis (for detailed observations) can be fruitful to detected similarities as well as personal style.

2. Classical approach needed understand and interpret on the detailed as well as global level and to understand processes of creativity and interplay with the band.
Thank you for your attention!

Contact
Wolf-georg.zaddach@hfm-weimar.de

www.wolf-georgzaddach.com
www.zaddachmusic.com/home